

Mehill Marku, M.B.A.

Vice President, Lead Geopolitical Analyst
PGIM Fixed Income
Newark, New Jersey

Mehill Marku is a vice president, lead geopolitical analyst at PGIM Fixed Income. Prior to assuming this position, he was a portfolio manager for PGIM Fixed Income's Foreign Exchange Team. Previously, Mr. Marku was a senior associate, assisting in global bond and foreign exchange management, trading and analysis. He was also previously an analyst in the Portfolio Analysis Group, focused on monitoring and quantifying portfolios' risks relative to their benchmarks, as well as evaluating and measuring total return performance and attribution. Mr. Marku also worked in the Structured Finance Group, as well as the Asset Liability and Risk Management area. He joined the firm in 1998. Earlier, Mr. Marku served as deputy foreign minister of Albania, negotiating economic and technical assistance programs with the EU's Economic Commission and Council of Europe as well as leading Albania's efforts to join multilateral political and financial institutions. Mr. Marku received a B.A. degree from Tirana University in Albania, an M.A. degree in public affairs from Princeton's Woodrow Wilson School of International Relations, and an M.B.A. degree from New York University.