

Emily Norris, M.B.A.

Regional Vice President, Growth
Maven Clinic
Hartford, Connecticut

Emily Norris is a regional vice president of growth at Maven Clinic, the largest digital health company for women's and family health. In her role, she specializes in working with multinational companies, overseeing growth and client retention. Emily has over 15 years of experience in the health care industry. An early adopter of artificial intelligence (AI), she most recently served as one of the first employees at an ML/AI start-up designed to support hospitals in improving clinical documentation. Emily has a uniquely holistic perspective on the industry, having worn multiple hats across the ecosystem—including roles that involve consulting payers, providers and vendors. She holds an M.B.A. degree from the University of Virginia Darden School of Business and a B.A. degree in political science from Colgate University.
